FLORIDA'S REAL ESTATE BOOM CRAZE

DISCUSSED BY CYRUS LOCHER STATE DIRECTOR OF COMMERCE

Booms Are Dangerous Because They Are Uncontrollable and the Values Created Are Frequently Unsound—Let the Buyer Beware—And Further Never Buy Real Estate When There Is a Brass Band Around.

pays the drivers $50 per week, furnishes free rides to everyone, and, of course, the cost of operating these busses, including depreciation, must be added to the selling price of the lots.

"This particular company concedes that the selling cost is 50 per cent of the selling price of their lots. Almost all of the companies furnish free lunches, free clam bakes or free banquets, have vaudeville acts and band concerts. One of the companies has a celebrated symphony orchestra that gives concerts several times a week at its main office.

Blue-Sky Law Enforced.

"If people want to go to Florida to buy land, that is their business. Some will make money, some will not, but the blue-sky law is being enforced in Ohio. We do not believe it to be good business for anyone to buy real estate without looking at it.

"The only advice that anyone can give about buying land away from home is to investigate before you buy. 'Let the buyer beware' and, further, never buy real estate when there is a brass band around."

Locher discussed also the Securities Department management and said that the present administration cannot be held responsible for what occurred prior to January, 1923. The companies that have failed were certificated before the present administration took hold, he said.

Oscar D. Miller, cashier of the Ohio Merchants' Trust company, Massillon was elected president, succeeding W. H. McClinton, Steubenville banker.

Besides Mrs. Tolbert and Mrs. Allen about 25 members were present.

A very interesting program was given including piano solos by Miss Catherine Morris, Miss Aubrey Wickenseimer, Miss Dorothy Denman and Eleanor Fitzpatrick and a reading by Mrs. E. A. Allen. Delicious refreshments consisting of tea, ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. Tolbert.

"What do you think about the story of Jonah and the big fish?" "I shall not permit myself to be drawn directly into the discussion," said Senator Yellowback. "If an effort is made to hold me responsible for an opinion I shall proceed immediately to refer the correspondence to the U. S. Fish agency."

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Cleveland, Ohio. — Harry Kuze was charged with murder by police Wednesday on testimony of his 10 year old son, Mike, that he saw his father crush the skull of Joseph Marcuierek with a baseball bat. The assault followed an argument, the boy said. Both men had been drinking.

Columbus — On the eve of his election in the Ohio penitentiary, Calvin Walters, 30, colored, Thursday confessed the murder of Alvin A. Stock, San Toy storekeeper.

Walters said he had a grudge against Stock because he believed the storekeeper had caused his arrest for bootlegging.

"I believe I am right with God now," the negro said, "and I am ready to die."

Walters will go to the electric chair tomorrow morning.

Columbus. — Ohio Methodists intend to undertake an extensive hospitalization program, representatives indicated Thursday at the 114th Ohio annual conference here.

Enlargement of St. Luke's hospital Cleveland, and White Cross hospital here is planned.

Dr. John G. Benson, superintendent of White Cross hospital reported that Central Ohio Methodists have an invested capital of $7,500,000 and contributed $500,000 to denominational benevolent enterprises last year.

ANNUAL DRIVE BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION

Makes Appeal to the Public for Funds to Carry on Charitable Work.

September means the annual call money to support the Circleville Benevolent association for another year.

The health work of the city grows larger each year and with it the need for money. Consequently the treasury is very low and we must ask for generous subscriptions to carry on the work.

Every one realizes that Miss Phelps is a very necessary part of our community and the kind and generous response which always comes from these appeals is very gratifying to the association.

Consider your blessings and this appeal, then be ready to give accordingly when the solicitors come to you next week.

PICKAWAY CO FARM BUREAU NEWS ITEMS

Raymond E. Cray, poultry department, Ohio State university and the county agent inspected the laying flock of Miss Mary McKenzie Wednesday afternoon. One hundred and eighty-six White Leghorn hens were banded with the Ohio Poultry Improvement association band. Mr. Cray remarked, "This is one of the best flocks I have examined."

Miss McKenzie will sell certified eggs from certified hens next spring for hatching purposes.

Miss McKenzie has kept a demonstration flock record for three years and says this about the record, "It put our flock on a profit basis."

The meeting at Palm Brothers Saturday morning, September 19, has been cancelled due to digestive disorders of the ton litter. The litter will probably weigh 2700 pounds but the Palms do not want a public demonstration. The hot weather during the heaviest feeding season is the cause of the disappointment.

Add statistics. If all the men who have not broken a single one of the tens of thousands of lays now in the statute books of the country in the last two years were gathered together in one telephone booth, the telephone booth would still be empty.

Pink hearts attached to pink rosebuds and bearing the names of Miss Geraldine Leggett and Dr. M. D. Scholl announced their engagement at the charming tea given Monday afternoon by Miss Mary Martha Herrstein at her home on South Mulberry street. The sixty guests who called during the hours of three and five were met at the door by Miss Isabel Enderlin who presented each with a rosebud. In the living room Miss Herrstein and Miss Leggett received, Miss Herrstein in a graceful gown of green georgette and Miss Leggett looking exceedingly attractive in green and gold georgette. Mrs. Ward Skinner of Wellston, presided at the punch bowl. In the dining room Miss Marion Woodrow poured and Miss Edna Clough and Miss Frances Barrett served, while Miss Anne Harcourt invited the guests to the dining room. The tea table was exceedingly lovely, carrying out the color scheme of pink, lavender and yellow. Yellow candles were placed at either end of the table which was centered by beautiful pink roses and lavender asters. The girls who assisted in their pastel shaded gowns added to the attractiveness of the picture.

Among the out-of-town guests who called during the afternoon were Miss Mary Alice Bales and Miss Ruth Mack, of Circleville.

Miss Leggett is the charming daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. D. Leggett of East Second street and one of the city's most popular young women. Dr. Scholl is now a doctor at White Cross hospital in Columbus, but expects to locate in this city in a short time.

The wedding will be an event of the early fall.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

Mrs. Graham, Miss Wilder and Miss McEwing were the clever hostesses to about 35 members of the Business and Professional Women's Club at the home of the former last evening.

Miss McEwing gave a very descriptive talk of her experiences as a delegate to the National convention at Portland, Me., last August. Both she and Miss Wilder wore souvenirs representative of the delegations from the different States. They also had gathered together a collection of paper flowers which the delegates had used to represent their States and had them banked upon the mantle, and during her talk, Miss McEwing explained what each flower represented. Quite a lot of amusement was afforded when they placed a pile of packages of all sizes and descriptions upon the floor and told the ladies to help themselves. Each package contained a small souvenir and a verse written on the package.

A delicious lunch was served and singing of the club songs completed the evening's entertainment.

VANDALS TUNNEL MOUND

Chillicothe, Sept. 15.—Vandals have been working in the rear of a mound on the John McKell farm a half mile east of Bainbridge, on the Cincinnati pike, it was learned today. They had made a tunnel 20 feet long, three feet wide and 10 feet high into the mound, which is under lease to the state. Nothing is believed to be missing, and a guard is being maintained. It is thought the discoveries in the Pricer mound recently prompted the attempted robbery.

SLAP AT PROHIBITION AGENTS AND WASHINGTON

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 16.—(U.P.)—The nation's capital today was branded a "cesspool of iniquity" by Judge T. H. Green, in his charge to the September county grand jury here. He deplored the acts of "all lone wolves and hungry dogs" who invade the city and county and "trample on the rights of American citizens."

His charge was taken as a slap at the conduct of federal prohibition raids in Peoria county this summer headed by "Lone Wolf" Asher, who caused the arrest of nearly 200 soft drink shop dealers.

"I regret that such things have come to pass," judge Green said. "I believe the state of Illinois is better able to determine what the people of this state need and want than any individual or set of individuals in that cesspool of iniquity, the city of Washington."

"The rights of the people of this community have been trampled upon by lone wolves and hungry dogs who have come here and invaded our rights, just like an invading army. Securing 'John Doe' search warrants and then inserting the names of the victim is the practice they followed as it has been reported to me."

"The invading tyrannists have enforced themselves with shotguns and revolvers. They have slipped their hands into the purses of their victims and put the money in their own pockets if reports coming to me are true. They have not respected the rights of American citizens, guaranteed to them under the constitution. I charge you especially to investigate the reported conduct of these men."

SCISSORS IN THE KITCHEN

A pair of scissors kept in the kitchen are invaluable. They should always be sharp and have good points and should hang upon a convenient hook. A nail is not advisable, as the scissors may fall and injure the points.

There are many uses for a pair of scissors and their employment in the place of a knife will result in more time saved and less labor lost.

When cutting meat for curries, stews, etc., the scissors will do the work in half the time of a knife. For cutting the fins off fish or preparing oranges for marmalade, raisins, dates or figs for puddings or cakes, or for chopping orange or lemon peel they are quick workers, as they are also for topping and tailing currants and sultanas.

Certain vegetables also can be cut with scissors. For instance, there is parsley for omeletes, or for white sauce, or for salads, or for sprinkling over hors d'oeuvres or for the stuffing for chicken or fish. They are useful for preparing celery, mint, beans.

Tarts and pies with fancy pastry may be decorated far better and more quickly with scissors than with a knife, while in making ornamental cakes attractive flowers and leaves can be cut from preserved fruit with a pair of scissors.—Christian Science Monitor.

He Knew His Stuff

Gilbert H. Ayres of Taylor university, who has just been announced as winner of the $1,000 prize essay contest in chemistry, offered by the National Chemistry society, and open to all colleges and universities of the United States, told a good story on himself the morning he received the prize.

In the evening mall of the day before he received a notice from the Up-land bank saying that his account was overdrawn 13 cents. On receiving his check he went to the bank at once, informed the cashier that he had come in to adjust his account and then, with the coolness of a millionaire, passed in his check for $1,000.—Indianapolis News.

Flare Is Feature
of New Fall Duds

Coats and Dresses Become
Wider From Waistline
Downward.

In discussing the fall fashions in women's coats and dresses, especially apparel for the young lady who is attending school, a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune says:

Let us start with the coat or cape as a beginning and work inward. Coats for autumn are more ample, surely from the waist downward, and most of them are made from beautiful rough materials with an incredibly soft, long nap, something like velvet. They are marked with the designs you see in men's overcoats and winter suits—chevrons, zigzag stripes, shadow plaids and small irregular diamonds. The outside of these winter coats is usually of some neutral tint like smoke gray, dull bois du rose, light brown or bright navy blue, and the inner side is of a bright color, so that many of them are made without linings. Coats are made with flaring backs, many of them swinging free from the shoulders, and are quite straight in front with diagonal closings or else are buttoned up to the chin. Jenny makes the backs of her youthful coats plaited from a deep shoulder yoke, which is very attractive if the material is not too heavy. Chanel buttons some of her coats straight down the center front from the chin. They have round collars of material or fur which frame the face and flare from the shoulders at the side and back.

Double-Faced Materials.

Some of the most attractive French costumes for the high school girl are three-piece, being composed of a cape and sports suit. Lucien Lelong makes these suits of double-faced material with circular full-length capes that fit the shoulders and show double-breasted jackets with front-plaited skirts. The interior of the cape is a bright color, and the skirt is also made of this brilliant side of the material. Another version of the three-piece suit, from Vionnet, shows a cape of gray lined with bright blue and a gray dress of frisco over which is worn a double-breasted vest of bright blue.

School dresses have jumper bodices and either circular or plaited skirts. Popular materials are a loose-woven fabric called kasha natte, frisco and cashmere. Remember that the jumper should be considerably shorter than last season, reaching just to the hips and no farther, and that the sleeves must be loose at the top. Standing band collars have, to a great extent, replaced the familiar round collar. Some of these collars have long bands that tie in front, on the shoulder or in back, and others have the band opening in front into a V. Martial et Armand have a dress for the young girl made of bois du rose cashmere

For Hop and Prom.

Louise Boulanger offers a unique party frock for the young girl, made of white and silver crepe with a straight bodice and long sleeves, bishop in cut, slit from wrist to the front and side of the armhole. The skirt is very full in front and has a butterfly sash of silver tulle placed at the waistline in front only. Capes of velvet or coats of velvet and lame brocade are worn with such frocks. Scarf collars are more often shown than collars of fur.

The guiding principle for the modern young girl in choosing her wardrobe is simplicity. In later years she can cover herself with embroidery and elaboration if she will, but if she is wise, or her parents are, she lets youth reap the full advantage that is given it by a charming, slim figure and a fresh complexion, and lets her frocks form a setting rather than fill the foreground of the picture.

Naturally, the simplicity will vary directly with the age of the girl, and it will not do to deny the budding college undergraduate some of the frills and furbelows of the post-debutante, particularly in evening clothes. For girls still in the secondary schools, however, the American tradition of an unaffected simplicity should be followed without deviation.

Give Piquant Touch

Two of the outstanding French designers are making extensive use of the watch fob as a trimming for the plain white flannel frocks now being worn. The black fobs bearing a sparkling ornament peep out of a breast pocket or from a receptacle at the wrist. Black-and-white leather belts also give a touch of piquancy to the simple costumes.

frocks of crepe de chine in soft shades of capucines, bois du rose, madonna blue and green and trims them with collars, cuffs and bands of velvet in the same tone. Madeleine Vionnet makes some of her young girl frocks of wool and bands them with a lighter-toned crepe de chine. Lace collars and cuffs are also seen on some of these frocks.

The Circular Cut.

Skirts show a preference for the circular movement, although plaits are also prominent. The godet is not used so much as either full or half-circular skirts. Plaited dresses of crepe de chine, banded in wool of the same shade or a lighter or darker tone of it are being offered by such houses as Chanel, Premet and Martial et Armand. These dresses are shown with sweaters of the wool banding; that is, a reseda green crepe de chine dress, plaited from a deep shoulder yoke and having a hem, pipings and collar and cuffs of dark green kashanatte, is worn with a sweater of the same fabric that fastens straight down the center front with green bone buttons and is banded with the lighter crepe de chine. Sometimes, particularly in the models of Madeleine Vionnet and Lucien Lelong, the sweater is replaced by the double-breasted sleeveless jacket. Sweaters and jackets of shadow plaid are worn with plain circular skirts of wool and with long coats or capes of plaid in order to give warmth when needed.

The young girl's dance frocks and general party dresses for early autumn have very full skirts indeed, and many of them have straight bodices that are cut to the normal waistline or at the longest, not lower than high on the hips. A dance dress of this type, from Drecol, is made of dull orange velvet with a straight bodice, cut to a V in front and back, and a skirt made very full with circular gores. It is new and entirely charming. Lelong has an attractive party frock for the young girl made of white crepe de chine with a skirt that is made full by means of godets all around, and a straight square-necked bodice. Over this is worn a sleeveless jacket of rose-colored velvet, surplice in front and tied in a sash at the back. Doucet has a debutante's dance frock made of madonna-blue tulle with a V-necked bodice and a godeted skirt worn over a straight slip of cream-colored lace.

WE SAVE YOU MONEY.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Chick Embryo in Glass

For the first time in history, the development of the embryo of a warm-blooded animal has been carried on under such conditions that it can be watched. This feat has been accomplished by two scientists at the University of Leyden, Drs. J. P. M. Vogelaar and J. B. van den Boogert, who have placed common hens' eggs, with the shells removed, in small glass dishes in an incubator, and have succeeded in keeping the embryo alive and growing for five days. Hitherto the only way in which embryos could be studied has been by placing large numbers of eggs in the incubator and removing and opening them one by one at intervals. By this older method it has been possible to study closely spaced stages of development, but not to observe the growth as a continuous process, now made possible by the new way.

Recalled Matter on Car

Just as a young woman on a south-bound street car rang the bell preparatory to leaving the car, the other day, a woman seated beside her asked: "Pardon me, but will you be going near a telephone?"

The girl said she would; whereupon the other said: "Well, will you please call up Westport XYZ and tell whoever answers to please take the potatoes off the fire, water the plants and leave the laundry on the side porch? And thank you, so much."

And so far as the other passengers know the young woman did.—Kansas City Star.

PURCHASE

Of 308 Acre Prison Farm Is Approved.

The state board of control Monday approved purchase by the state welfare department of an additional 308 acres of land at the London prison farm by allotting $50,000 for the purchase. The money had been appropriated by the last legislature for the purchase of additional land at the institution, subject to the control board's approval.

The board took no further action on the proposed purchase of the Roseville brick plant in Muskingum County, the issue not having been presented by Welfare Director John E. Harper. The board takes the attitude that its task was finished when it set aside $28,000 for the purchase, though Director Harper had bargained for the plant for $35,000.

NEW PALACE
RESTAURANT
INVITES YOU

To Their Opening Saturday,
Sept. 19, Cafe Under
New Management.

An old restaurant, The Palace, with new faces, will open its portals to the public Saturday morning, September 19.

The entire building has been remodeled. The billiard and lunch rooms have received a coat of ivory white; the counters in their new suit of immaculate white present a cheerful appearance. Everything in the lunch room shows the master hand of an experienced man, who seems to sense the wants of the public.

New nickel plated coffee urns, new serving and steam tables have been installed, also a frigidaire for the storage of icecream; an electric freezing display case for the display of good things to eat, will be placed in the show window to show the public, how cool and clean the food that enters the inner man is kept. Sanitary will be the watch word, of this famous old restaurant.

The kitchen has also been remodeled and every device known to the culinary art, has been placed near and in control of the chef, and his assistants. Electricity has been installed which will run the meat and food chopper; the bread cutting machine and the ice chipper. Electric suction fans carry off the odors of the room and really makes these quarters which is the battery of a well equipped restaurant a pleasant place in which to work.

Three of the cosiest rooms on the second floor have been fitted up for the accommodations of ladies, who have a private entrance on Court street. The floors of these rooms have been covered with cork linoleum. The ceilings and walls have been repapered with neat and artistic paper and the baseboard and chair rails and other woodwork of the rooms have been painted a sheer white, giving the rooms a most inviting appearance. Opaque tables have been ordered, but for the present oak and walnut will be used; each room is equipped with electric fans and everything that milada, desires in the way of comfort has been provided for her convenience.

The Palace will be managed by Denny Pickens, who is the sole proprietor. Mr. Pickens promises to give the city a restaurant that the public will be proud to recommend to their friends. He will be ably assisted by James Carpenter, who will be the assistant manager.

French Colonials in Paris

The interest taken by France's colonial subjects in the decorative arts' exposition adds to the picturesque aspect of the crowds daily along the Esplanade des Invalides and in the grand palais in Paris. Swarthy Moroccan chieftains, Algerians, Tunisians, Senegalese, all in native costume, promenade in and out among the booths and pavilions, pausing to inspect with gravity and awe the various displays. Some are there in connection with the exhibits of the French colonies and protectorates, but the exposition authorities say that a far greater number are in the real tourist class, paying their own expenses and following their own programs.

Unemployment has fallen off in Italy. From recent reports we gather their chief occupation is nursing babies.

BREADFRUIT HAS
MYTHICAL ORIGIN

Filipinos Believe It to Be
Gift of a God.

The mythical account of the origin of breadfruit is typical of the Turanian culture which still grips the soul of the common man in the Philippines despite four centuries of Christian civilization.

According to the breadfruit myth, there was once a prolonged famine which was so severe that the people were reduced to the extremity of subsisting upon "araga," a sort of reddish earth declared to be edible.

A poor man and his wife had only one son, whom they tenderly loved. Not being able to bear the sight of the slow starvation of this son during the fearful famine, the father vowed that he himself would die and become food for the child. He asked the special boon of Bathala, god of gods in the Philippine pantheon, that when he should be dead Bathala would convert his remains into a food, and Bathala granted the prayer. Thereupon the father told the afflicted mother to grieve no more, but when he should be dead to bury his head in one place, his vitals in another and his body in another. When she should hear the sound of a leaf falling, then of an unripe fruit, and then of a ripe fruit, she would know that his prayer had been answered and hers and the child's life were to be spared.

Death came to the father. The widow buried the heart and stomach in the garden near the house, and Bathala lost no time in complying with his promise to a father ready to sacrifice life itself for a suffering child. Soon the widow heard a leaf fall, then an unripe fruit, then a ripe fruit. In a paroxysm of fear and hope she looked out into the garden—where behold! a breadfruit was growing! It was already full of ripened fruits curiously shaped like the human stomach! The famine was broken, the child's life saved, as the father had wished. Now, with many varieties of breadfruit growing without the least care throughout the Philippines, famine is not likely to recur in any degree of intensity; and if breadfruit does not suffice, then there are bananas and coconuts, each of which no doubt has quite as miraculous an origin as the breadfruit itself.

German Writes of Lincoln

One of the latest publications on the German book market is a biography of Abraham Lincoln in German. Hitherto only the German translation of the Carl Schurz sketch of Abraham Lincoln's life existed. The author of the German work is Count Albrecht Montgelas. The book has met with a favorable reception by the press. Reviewing it the Vossische Zeitung says: "Despite the obvious thoroughness of Count Montgelas's investigations and research work among the mass of existing Lincoln biographies, his book reads like an interesting short story." Another paper states: "Even among educated Germans, there are not many who fully realize Lincoln's historical importance."

DEVIOUS ARE THE WAYS OF CROOKS

Modern Thief Is Thoroughly Up to Date.

Great criminals of fiction who find it necessary to secure the impressions of keys for some nefarious purpose invariably carry small pellets of wax, which they keep pliable by the warmth of the hand. I suppose years ago burglars did use this sticky and clumsy method, writes Wilfrid Singleton.

The modern criminal, however, moves with the times. A few days ago I saw the impressions of a key taken by an expert gang of burglars who intended to commit a crime. They had their plans all perfected for a huge warehouse robbery. For weeks they had cultivated the acquaintance of the woman cleaner of the establishment, and one of them in the early morning helped in beating carpets and sweeping the stairs. To gather the impressions of all the keys in the warehouse had been a simple matter.

All these impressions were taken in the bone of a cuttlefish, that curious white flaky substance which children and artists use as well as modern burglars. For the bone of the cuttlefish gives a clear, sharp impression of the key edges, far better than can ever be obtained by wax, and moreover it possesses such properties that a mold is already at hand, and the keys can be made at once.

Queer devices of a similar nature are produced by criminal brains. The policeman, young and enthusiastic, who first tied a cotton thread to the handle of a jeweler's shop and a nail in the side of the doorway has long since been found out, as also has his comrade who stuck a penciled piece of stamp paper on the joint of a door.

The regularity of the beats of these officers enables the crooks to make little of these safeguards. They simply appoint one of their number, known as the "minder," who wanders along behind the officer, armed with a similar piece of sticking plaster and a similar portion of cotton.

Once his friends are inside the premises which are to be robbed, he replaces the policeman's device with his own, and the officer, when he arrives an hour or so later at the shop, discovers his cotton or plaster apparently intact. He walks serenely by, assured of his own alertness, while the burglars inside the shop are probably working with acetylene lamps at the safe that he will not know has been robbed until detectives arouse him in the late morning from his sleep with the news and with requests for explanations.

Swore by the Beard

In the Middle Ages the seal on documents of great importance contained three hairs from the sovereign's beard as a sign that matters of much moment were concerned.

Colleges may turn out professors of philosophy, but it's the school of life that turns out philosophers.

Harold Lloyd in The Freshman

A Pathe Picture

Harold Lloyd Corp

Harold Lloyd adds another outstanding characterization to his crowd of "Grandma's Boy" his mind physician of "Dr. Jack" and his stuttering Lothario of "Girl Shy" with his delineation of a college boy in "The Freshman," his latest contribution to the world of mirth, showing Monday at the Met theater.

It is said that Lloyd gives the best performance of his career in "The Freshman," in which he has caught the spirit of a college youth whose ambition is to become the most popular boy on the campus. The trials and tribulations he goes thru to attain fame bring about scores of hilarious incidents, with a large measure of sympathy running through the picture.

This marks Lloyd's first screen attempt in a story of college life, but the part he plays in "The Freshman" seems to model him to perfect measure. Jobyna Ralston has been accorded the heroine role and others in the cast are Hazel Keener, Brooks Benedict, Pat Harmon, James Anderson and Joe Harrington. Sam Taylor, John Grey, Ted Wilde and Tom Whelan wrote the story and Taylor and Fred Newmeyer directed.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MEN IN RANKS OF GREAT

Writer Puts Franklin Pierce at Head of List.

The greatest office ever held by a New Hampshire man, and held by him as a resident of New Hampshire, was held by Franklin Pierce. It is something for us to reflect upon that he is one of the few who have gained much renown who gained it as citizens of the state, observes the Manchester Union.

Daniel Webster would, of course, be held as our greatest man, and yet he won his fame in another state and it was Massachusetts, not New Hampshire, that sent him to Washington as a senator. Still, Massachusetts has given him up to us just as it has given up Calvin Coolidge to Vermont. Webster's personal interests remained with us, his love went to New Hampshire not to Massachusetts.

Franklin Pierce, who was President, was also a military man, possibly looking more like a soldier than being one. His military training was slight, yet he was gallant in action and made a very handsome appearance on horseback, which had a good deal to do with his nomination. The South used to decide who should be nominated by the Democracy, and nomination by that party then was nearly a guarantee of election. The South liked New Hampshire and liked the looks of Pierce. New Hampshire was the one New England state that was popular in the South and was the most popular Northern state. Does anyone in the South think of New Hampshire now? This liking by the South meant much in the way of political patronage for us, we got things no other Northern state could get.

Gen. Lewis Cass of Michigan, who was almost President, was easily the most distinguished soldier who was born in New Hampshire. But his career was made in the West. He remembered little of New Hampshire, the one thing that stood out in his recollection being the fact that he was held in his nurse's arms to see President George Washington ride into Exeter.

Gen. John A. Dix got fame more from some ringing words in the first doubtful days of the Civil war than for exploits in battle. He said a stirring thing at a right time, pronouncing a slogan at a period when that highland Scotch word was not used in our country, "If any man starts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot." People who have autos stolen might well wish General Dix were here and in charge of that problem. It would cease to be a problem after two and a half auto thieves had been shot. Two auto thieves shot to death and a third one filled with birdshot would stop auto stealing for a long time.

Salmon P. Chase was another of our great men who developed elsewhere. Of late years, to somewhat make up for the important men we have contributed to other states, we have been attracting men of note. Of our contemporary leading men several came to New Hampshire. It would be invidious to try to catalogue the living, to mention those still with us. Ralph D. Pierce actually belonged to us. Winston Churchill is well identified with us and McDowell and Saint Gaudens had some New Hampshire background.

Cats Dodge Electricity

Attendants at the city dog pound are convinced cats either have nine lives or are quicker than electricity. The men have no trouble executing dogs by electrocution, but they have had difficulty sending cats out of the world. Cats taken to the pound for biting persons and later ordered executed have managed to make a flying leap out of the opening to the electric "chair" the instant the current touched them. Sparks even flew from their fur, but otherwise they seemed unhurt. Now the attendants have adopted the expedient of first knocking senseless cats sentenced to death. —Detroit News.

Found Stolen Money

Lynn (Mass.) police were sent to investigate the report that some one had rifled the clothing of the employees of a bakery, and had escaped through a window, taking $50 in bills from the clothing. The policeman examined the window through which the thief was supposed to have left the building. It was only a little jump to the ground and the policeman made it easily. There lay the roll of bills on the ground. The money was returned and all was well.

The Wise Ones

The Grand Duchess Cyril said many clever things during her American visit. Thus to a New York girl reporter— "The women most successful with men," said the grand duchess, "are not the beautiful ones, but the wise ones. And the wise ones are those who know that men are only babies with beards."

Pure Aluminum

Pure aluminum, the goal of many years of research, soon will be available in commercial quantities through the development of a new refining process, says Popular Science Monthly for August. This product has a beautiful silver color and luster which it retains very well.

VIENNA HOTBED OF CAFE PLOTS

Coffee House Rebels Busy All the Time, but Prove Harmless.

Vienna.—Though Austria's denial of implication in the recent Bolshevik outrages in Bulgaria has been generally and willingly accepted, there is added interest at the moment in the picture drawn by an Austrian writer recently in the Neuer Wiener Journal of "the foreigners in Vienna—the emigres, dreamers, conspirators, and harmless tradespeople" who swept in on the Austrian capital from all directions during and since the war, to dream dreams, plot gigantic but comforting conspiracies, and finally settle down as the "coffee-house revolutionists," but otherwise good citizens of the metropolis.

"One thing is certain," declares a writer with the New York World, "Vienna is one of the most important centers of irredentism in central Europe, as the number of permanent foreign residents alone would indicate. Notwithstanding all that, it has been a rare occurrence when a plot, whether political or anarchistic, that actually came to fruition, had its starting point in Vienna. The surveillance of foreigners by the Viennese police is too strict. And not only that, the watching of foreigners in Vienna by their own governments is too sharp. And so the plotting in Vienna achieves in almost all instances only 'coffee-house revolutions.' In these, certainly, Vienna is overrich. Also, in a flood of foreign emigre literature, of emigre and irredentist newspapers,

Of All Opinions.

"Indeed, the Vienna coffee houses seem predestined for plotting, if only thanks to tradition. In Vienna coffee houses '1848' was cooked up; the Vienna coffee houses were feared even before that by Metternich and his chief of police; in Vienna coffee houses the downfall was planned ('the downfall' has only one meaning for Austrians today; the collapse of the monarchy in the last year of the war); and in Vienna coffee houses today gather the foreigners, the emigres.

"The emigres in Vienna are recruited all the way from the extreme right to the extreme left. And that, too, was always so. Trotsky sat in a window-corner of the Cafe Zentral, and the last Bourbon pretender to the throne, too, lived for a time in a little room in Mariahilf. And now—the grandees of the old Russian empire, with Prince Trubetzkoy and Prince Galitzin, work here exactly like the Russian revolutionists and the most radical Bolsheviks.

Where Bolsheviks Gather.

"The Bolsheviks, who gather regularly at a cafe on the Ring, are the best off financially; the monarchists are the poorest, at least personally—for propaganda there is always money. Vienna harbors within its walls two high Russian generals, one of whom is a shoemaker, the other an agent. For a time a Russian admiral had a little confectionery store here, and a colonel a newspaper stand.

"Of particular interest is the political existence of the Ukrainians in Vienna. Their various organizations have headquarters in the Cafe Herrenhof and in a Josefstadt cafe. They have their own 'comite nationale' in Vienna. The Ukrainian government, after its flight following the incorporation of East Galicia into Poland, took up headquarters in Vienna, whence it directs the agitation for the restoration of complete Ukrainian independence. The little Barbara church in the Postgasse is in a sense the Ukrainian national church, since it holds the bones of the Ukraine's patron saint.

"Next in significance to the Russians and Ukrainians are the Hungarians—numerically the strongest but unorganized and scattered. Most of them are already 'Austrianized' and absorbed in the social and commercial life of Vienna.

"One Assassination Proved. The writer here explains that, though Vienna harbors 150,000 Czechs who still profess allegiance to Austria's northern neighbor, this group cannot rightly come under the head of 'emigres,' since most of them had settled in Vienna long before the war.

"But the Balkans, too, have their representatives in this empire of emigres. If the Russians and Hungarians are political workers to be taken more or less seriously, and the Czechs harmless tradespeople, the Balkan emigres are for the most part fantastic dreamers. It was a Balkan club of Albanian revolutionists that was responsible for the only assassination (the murder of Essad Pasha) that was probably plotted in Vienna. In a Josefstadt cafe, frequented even today by the Albanians, sentence of death was pronounced against the Albanian dictator, Macedonian, Montenegro, and still other 'national' committees hold regular meetings in the cafes on the Ring.

"Naturally, the emigres need newspapers. The Hungarians have the greatest number of dailies, and two publishing houses besides. The Czechs have two daily papers and several weekly reviews, the Russians several weeklies of every color, and also the Ukrainians. The other emigres content themselves with pamphlets and similar propaganda sheets. But the demand for foreign newspapers in Vienna is correspondingly great and the portable newspaper kiosks on every street corner have become a necessity."

AMUSEMENTS

A rousing romance, seasoned with several spectacular thrills and some genuine laughs—that's "Code of the West," the new Paramount film that made its debut last night at the Met theater. It's a picturization of the story of the same name by the well known Zane Grey.

The author has every reason to feel grateful to Lucien Hubbard, who wrote the screen version, and William K. Howard, who directed the picture, for the plot has lost none of its virility and vitality by its transfer to the silver sheet. Moreover, the actual locations mentioned in the book—the picturesque and rugged country in the Tonto Basin, Arizona—were used as backgrounds, so that the colorful scenery it not the least of the photoplay's worth-while features. Interest in the picture is further heightened by the performances of an exceptional cast headed by a quintet of popular players including Owen Moore, Constance Bennett, Mabel Ballin, Charles Ogle and David Butler.

The action of the story deals with the romance of Miss Bennett, a vivacious little flapper from the east, and Owen Moore, a somewhat bashful cowboy from the west. Miss Bennett's flirtatious ways provoke Moore, who is genuinely in love with her, into using caveman tactics and forcing her to marry him at the point of a gun.

The surprising developments that follow lead up to a thundering climax that furnishes the degree of excitement and thrills. Two of the many tremendous scenes in the picture include a dynamic automobile horse race and raging forest fire.

Make it your business to see "Code of the West," if you are looking for the out-of-the-ordinary in film entertainment.

Why They Chuckled

Smith had been troubled by his neighbor's hens. One day he was looking at them over the fence when he inquired, "By the way, Jones, what did you pay for those fowls?" "A dollar apiece," replied Brown. "Ah, that explains it," said Smith. "I wondered what the things had to chuckle about."

Rye Is Surest for Winter Cover CropMakes More Growth on Poor Soils Than Any Other.

Of all winter cover crops, rye is the surest and the nearest fool-proof.

"It will make more growth on poor soils, whether clay or sandy, than any other. It is resistant to winter-killing, and may be sown successfully from August to December; but, October 1 is probably the best date of sowing for most localities," says E. C. Blair, agronomist for the North Carolina State College of Agriculture. "A bushel of seed should be used per acre. The seed may be scattered over a corn or cotton field and covered with a one-horse cultivator. This may be done at laying-in time or just after the first picking of cotton. Rye may be sown this way in a corn field, or the corn may be removed, the land disked and the rye drilled in."

Mr. Blair states that rye often gives good grazing in the fall when sown early. It will also give grazing in the early spring. Live stock should be taken off in time for the crop to make good growth for turning under.

The rye should be turned under as soon as the heads begin to show, as at this time it will rot quickly in the soil. If allowed to become too ripe the stems may interfere with cultivation and soil moisture conditions all summer.

Rye is not a legume, Mr. Blair points out and takes no nitrogen from the air. Its value is in the prevention of soluble plant food from leaching out of the soil, the checking of erosion and in adding organic matter to the soil when turned under. It is one of the best crops to improve the tilth of the soil in this way. Whenever the success of a leguminous cover crop is doubtful, rye should be sown with the legume.

Carefully Store Apples for Use During Winter

Care should be taken when storing winter apples to do this job "just right." Apples keep to the best advantage where each apple is wrapped separately in paper. If the apples are not already wrapped the wise householder wraps each one himself; but where this seems to be too much like work, at least be careful to put them in paper-lined barrels or boxes and then "go over" them frequently during the winter to pick out any that may show signs of decay, for "one bad apple will spoil a whole barrel."

Care should also be taken not to store the apples too near strong vegetables, such as turnips, onions, or even potatoes. For apples, like butter, are apt to "take on" the odors of other food that happens to be near them. Everyone knows that apples should be stored in a good dry cellar and in a cellar that will keep them cold but where they will not be frozen.

The tart varieties of apples are the best for canning purposes. All bruised spots, of course, should be carefully cut away from the fruit before cooking it. The most completely satisfactory method of preserving the apple is to make it into apple sauce and then place it in well-sterilized glass jars while it is hot. Of course, some may prefer to can the apples whole, so that they can be used more advantageously for apple dumplings.

Fruit Growers Urged to Order All Stock Early

Prospective fruit growers should order their nursery stock early in the fall, stipulating the grades desired, and that delivery shall be made on a designated date. Nursery trees are usually graded according to height, although diameter measurement an inch or two above the bud should be taken into consideration. Trees for planting should be well grown and stocky, explains E. H. Rawl, assistant extension horticulturist at Clemson college, who points out the method of handling.

When you receive your trees they should be immediately be unpacked and heeled-in where the soil is moist. This heeling-in process is accomplished by placing the roots in a trench a foot or 18 inches deeper than they are to be planted, with the earth packed around them. Trees are usually heeled at a 45 degree angle in the heeling-in trench.

The care given the strawberry bed now will largely determine the size of the crop next year. A row well filled (but not too full) of well grown, vigorous plants this fall is a pretty good insurance for the 1926 crop.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself--and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

The Versatile Pineapple

PINEAPPLE has indeed been well named the most versatile fruit that we have. In deserts it is unrivaled and as a salad with cheese it is as delicious as it is good to look at. Its widespread popularity dates from the perfection of the canning process, for it is the canned product that is in greatest demand. Fresh pineapple is somewhat tasteless and is usually full of tough fibers.

Canned pineapple is packed in two ways for the convenience of the housewife—in slices for salads and desserts that require firm fruits, and shredded for ice cream, sherbets, fruit drinks, puddings, pies and other fancy desserts.

Recently the world has been developing a taste for saute pineapple and you will now find it served in this form with meat dishes. To saute pineapple place slices of it in a frying pan of hot butter and brown it slowly on both sides.

For a quick dessert nothing is more delicious or easier to make than shredded pineapple mixed with marshmallows cut in small pieces and bound together with whipped cream. If you like, a sprinkling of coconut can be added on top. Crushed pineapple makes a delicious sandwich filling if mixed with cream cheese. It also adds flavor to ice cream when poured on like sundae sauce.

Pineapple Custard Pie

Mix one can of crushed pineapple, 1 cup sugar, 2-1/2 tablespoons flour, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 beaten egg and 1/2 tablespoon melted butter. Pour into a deep pastry lined pie plate. Put strips of pastry across the top and bake in hot oven 40 minutes, reducing heat during last 20 minutes of baking.

Pineapple Sherbet

Add 1/2 can of crushed pineapple and the juice of 1/2 lemon to 1 1/2 cups of grape juice. Dissolve 1 tablespoon of softened gelatine in 1/2 cup of boiling water. Add to mixture and freeze.

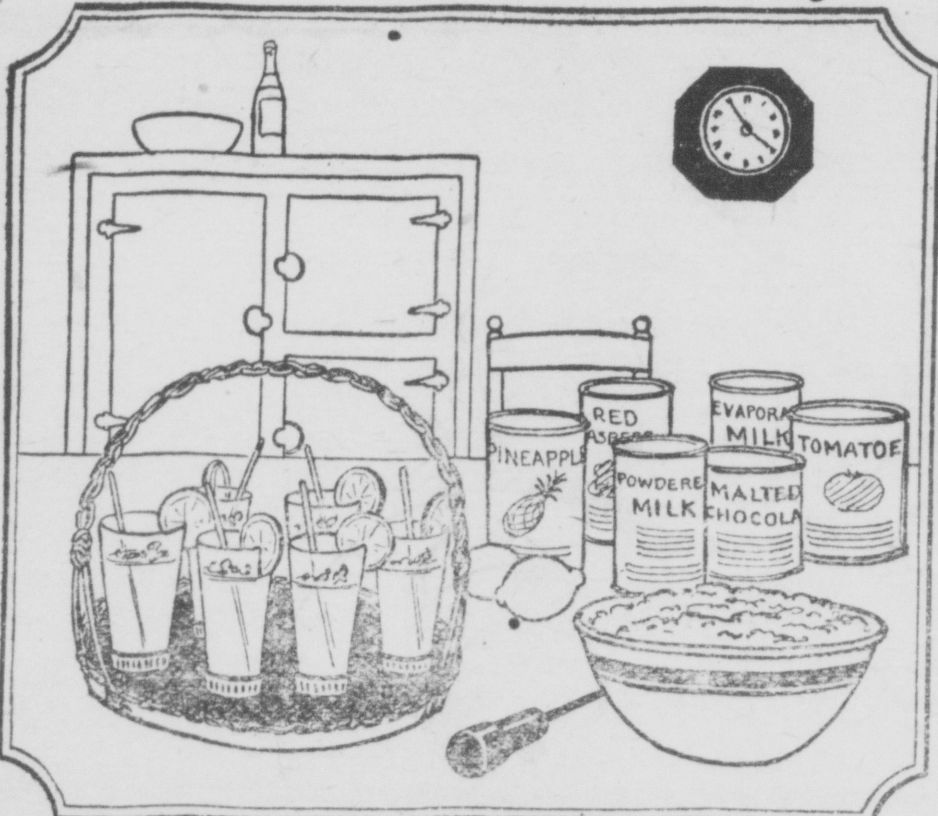

Pineapple Cheese Salad

Place slices of canned pineapple on lettuce leaves, allowing one slice for each person. Make French dressing and add 2 tablespoons of Roquefort, cream cheese or grated American cheese. After it is thoroughly mixed pour over pineapple and serve.

Pineapple Cake Glaze

Cream 1/2 cup lard, gradually adding 1-1/2 cups sugar. Add 1 well beaten egg. Sift 2 1/2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, and 1/4 teaspoon salt, and add to the first mixture alternately with 1 cup cold water. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in an iron spider and add 1 cup brown sugar, stirring until smooth. Spread with a layer of well drained crushed pineapple, pour batter over this and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven. Turn out on a plate, cool thoroughly, spread with whipped cream and serve.

Punch For The Party

PUNCH is just about the easiest refreshment which the hostess can serve at an informal dance or a simple afternoon party. With the aid of canned fruit juices, malted or evaporated milk, a few lemons and oranges and plenty of cracked ice, all sorts of delicious concoctions can be made.

Raspberry Shrub

Two cups water, 3/4 cup sugar, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 cups orange juice, 1 cup canned whole raspberries, 1 cup raspberry juice. Boil sugar and water together 3 minutes and chill. Add fruit juices and berries and pour over ice in pitcher. This makes 6 glasses.

Chocolate Float

Three cups evaporated milk, 1 cup water, 4 ounces unsweetened chocolate, 3 tablespoons hot water, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, whipped cream flavored with vanilla. Scald the diluted milk in a double boiler. Mix the chocolate, sugar and hot water over the fire. Add to hot milk and beat well. Add vanilla and chill. Serve topped with whipped cream.

Pineapple Frost

Mix two cups syrup from canned pineapple, 1 cup ice water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1-3 cup syrup. Pour into glasses containing cracked ice. Top with a spoonful of whipped cream and sprinkle with nutmeg.

Oriental Punch

To the juice of six oranges add

cupful each of the juice from canned peaches and pineapple and set this away in the ice box and when ready to serve add sugar to taste and a quart of ice water. The juice of canned berries can be substituted in place of peach and pineapple if you like.

Pineapple Grape Juice Punch

Two cups pineapple juice, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 cups grape juice, 2 cups ice water, 3 large slices orange, 6 maraschino cherries. Mix pineapple and lemon juice and sugar and stir until sugar dissolves. Add grape juice and ice water and pour into glasses each containing a half slice of orange, a cherry and a small piece of ice.

Grapefruit Punch

One cup of juice drained from a can of grapefruit, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 cups orange juice, 2 cups ice water, 1-1/2 cups powdered sugar. Mix the fruit juices and sugar and stir until sugar dissolves. Add iced water and serve.

Rhubarb Punch

Three cups rhubarb, 3 cups water, 1-1/2 cups sugar, 1 cup juice from canned pineapple, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 cups ice water. Cook rhubarb which has been cut in small pieces without peeling. Rub through a fine strainer, add sugar and stir until it dissolves. Chill. Add fruit juices and ice water and pour into glasses.

Mammoth Loaf

A loaf of bread, said to be the largest ever baked, was made recently in Minneapolis. It was 60 feet long and contained more than 400 pounds of flour.

PAUL WRITES TO THE THESSALONIANS

LESSON TEXT—1 Thess. 2:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—"In everything give thanks."—1 Thess. 5:18.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Love for His Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How Paul Worked in Thessalonica.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul's Devotion to His Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Spirit and Method of Paul's Work.

While the lesson committee has selected this brief passage in the second chapter for printing, the intention was to present the message of the entire epistle. It was on Paul's second missionary journey that the church at Thessalonica was founded as seen in the last lesson. After crossing into Macedonia he preached the Gospel at Philippi, where he was imprisoned. From Philippi he went to Thessalonica. The people there were largely Gentiles.

I. The Salutation (ch. 1:1).

Timothy and Silas were associated with Paul in this missionary journey, and they are associates of Paul in this message.

II. Paul's Thanksgiving (1:2-10).

1. For Their Faith, Love and Hope (v. 2-4).

This triad of graces testified of their election of God.

2. How They Received the Gospel (v. 5).

It was in the power of the Holy Spirit.

3. Joyful Obedience (v. 6).

4. Exemplary Lives (v. 7).

5. Missionary activities (v. 8).

6. Turned From Idols (vv. 9-10).

III. Character of Paul's Ministry (2:1-12).

It would seem from this defense that some of the Jews had called into question his ministry. He defends himself by showing the character of his ministry:

1. It Was Courageous (vv. 1-2).

His persistence in spite of shameful persecution proved his devotion to the Lord and His work.

2. Honest and Guileless (vv. 3-4).

As one sent of God, he faithfully ministered unto them, not courting man's favor.

3. Without Flattering Words (v. 5).

4. Without a Cloak of Covetousness (v. 6).

5. Did Not Seek Glory From Man (v. 6).

6. Gentle and Affectionate (vv. 7-8).

So vitally did he enter into the lives of the people that he displayed a gentleness even as a nursing mother with her children.

7. Unselfish (v. 9).

In order that his motive be not questioned, he labored night and day for his support.

8. Irreproachable and Blameless (v. 10).

He did not claim to be faultless, but he challenged them as to his blamelessness.

9. His Lofty Aim (vv. 11-12).

That they would walk worthy of God in keeping with their high calling.

IV. How the Gospel Was Received (2:13-16).

As the very Word of God.

V. Paul's Desire for the Thessalonians (2:17-3:13).

1. He Endeavored to See Them Face to Face, but Was Hindered by Satan (2:17-18).

2. He Declared Them to Be His Crown of Rejoicing (2:19-20).

His hope of meeting his converts at Christ's second coming was his crown of rejoicing.

3. Timothy Sent to Them (3:1-10).

It was his report that furnished the information concerning this church.

4. He Prayed for Them (3:11-13).

VI. Sins Rebuked (4:1-12)

1. Unchastity (vv. 1-5).

2. Dishonesty (vv. 6-8).

3. Lack of Brotherly Love (vv. 9-10).

4. For Being Busybodies (v. 11).

5. Idleness (v. 11).

VII. Doctrinal Errors Corrected (4:13; 5:11).

1. Not to Sorrow Unduly (v. 13).

It was because of their misunderstanding of the meaning of the coming of the Lord that they were indulging in excessive sorrow.

2. The Reason Assigned (vv. 13-18).

(1) The departed saints will come back when Jesus comes (v. 14).

(2) Living Believers Will Be Caught Up With Them (v. 17).

3. The Time of the Lord's Coming Unknown (5:1-11).

The exhortation is "be ready," watch.

VIII. Concluding Exhortations (5:12-28).

Sin, Grace, Humility

No sin is so offensive to God, and so injurious to the soul as pride. No grace is so commended, both by precept and example, as humility.—Ryle

Truth

Truth is not of man's making, but of God's revelation. Hear it in the house of God.—American Lutheran.

To Be Thankful

To be thankful is to be especially Christlike.—Russell H. Conwell.

NO CONGREGATION FOR NEW CHURCH

Will of Illinois Man Gives $50,000 for Spiritualist House and Library.

Leroy, Ill.—They have broken ground here for a $50,000 church with out any parishioners. There will be $25,000 expended for furnishings and extras. A pulpit for the preacher and seats for the communicants, but there will be no people. This house of worship will be dedicated on March 1, 1926.

The court has ruled that the structure must be built. It was provided for in the will of J. T. Crumbaugh, an eccentric farmer of this community. He died in 1905, leaving a will which plainly stipulated that the income from 1,100 acres of the richest land in McLean county should be set aside forever and be used solely for the construction of the church and also a public library to be erected here in Leroy. After sufficient funds accrued to pay the cost of construction, then the annual income from the land was to be devoted to the maintenance of the two institutions.

Relatives Contest Will.

Relatives ignored by the testator immediately instituted suit to have the document set aside, alleging undue influence, incompetency and various other reasons. The litigation was carried on for a number of years and ran the gamut of the various courts from the lowest to the highest. The lower court declared the will invalid but the Supreme court set aside this finding and held that the will should stand. A new suit was filed in the Circuit court and again the plaintiffs won and the case was taken up. Again the upper tribunal decided for the will. For the third time, the relatives-presented the issues in a new form in the Circuit court and a jury decided for them, but on the appeal the Supreme court refused to recede from its original findings and insisted that Crumbaugh was entirely rational and sane when he made the will and was a man of excellent judgment, prudence and forethought.

Heirs Give Up Battle.

After three successive knockouts the disappointed heirs decided that they were up against a stone wall and the litigation ended. The defense of the will by the executor cost the estate $60,000 in attorneys and court fees and this had to be raised by the sale of property of various kinds. The litigation and resultant expense has delayed action upon the church and library, as it was necessary to accumulate sufficient funds to justify letting the contract. The fund is now ample and the contract has been let.

Crumbaugh and his wife were formerly Universalists, but five years before the former's death he became interested in spiritualism and joined that sect. He believed with sincerity that he could converse with departed friends and spiritualistic mediums took advantage of this belief and arranged numerous seances at his home. The Crumbaughs became the parents of a child that lived two months. It was the fancy of the father that his child became an adult spirit and was daily seeking to communicate with him. He engaged a portrait painter to place upon canvas a replica of the son as he would likely appear at man's estate had he been permitted to live. This imaginary portrait in oil was hung upon the wall of the Crumbaugh home-stead and became a shrine at which the father daily worshiped, while with the co-operation of the mediums he believed that he was conversing with this child.

$20,000 for Maintenance.

Opponents of the will stressed this point in the effort to prove Crumbaugh of unsound mind, but it failed to carry any weight with the Supreme court. There was little surprise when the will was read, to learn that his fortune, estimated at $250,000, had been left to found and support a Spiritualist church and a library.

When Crumbaugh was alive there was a small group of neighbors who entertained the same faith, but all are gone and today, it is asserted there is not a single believer in spiritualism in this community. Realizing the folly of building a church without a leader or congregation, the trustees conceived the idea of combining the church and library and utilizing one-half for an auditorium and the other half for the storage of books and also a reading room.

The court ruled that this dual structure did not conflict with the will, and, accordingly, plans were drawn for the combination church and library. There will be a seance room where mediums may seek to communicate with the spirits, while there will be an auditorium seating several hundred people, suitable for meetings of Spiritualists or others.

The joint building will be 120 feet in length and 63 feet in width. There will be an income of $20,000 per annum for the support and maintenance of the structure.

The Leroy library has probably the richest endowment and the largest annual income of any similar institution in the smaller cities of the United States. The will stipulates that the land must not be sold and that the income must be used exclusively for the maintenance of the two institutions. With ample funds the institution can be made of tremendous educational value to the community it serves and will likely be classed as a leader in library efficiency in the United States.

FLORIDA'S REAL ESTATE BOOM CRAZE

DISCUSSED BY CYRUS LOCHER STATE DIRECTOR OF COMMERCE

Booms Are Dangerous Because They Are Uncontrollable and the values Created Are Frequently Unsound—Let the Buyer Beware—And Further Never Buy Real Estate When There Is a Brass Band Around.

Cyrus Locher, director of commerce of Ohio, discussed the Florida real estate boom before Group 8 of the Ohio Bankers' Association, at New Philadelphia, Ohio, September 16. Locher said that booms invariably have been followed by reactions during which the "values" that had been built up by speculation slumped greatly. He gave typical illustrations of the real estate booms of the past generation.

In his discussion of the Florida land proposition Mr. Locher said in part: "Florida no doubt will continue to develop. All the real estate men agree that there will be a reaction. It is estimated that 2,000 real estate men from Ohio are going to Florida this summer or fall to buy property to sell next winter. Lots are sold to be resold, and the high pressure salesmen are not selling lots to be built on and improved, but to be held for higher prices. The real estate men all agree that a reaction will come, but none agree upon the time. They frankly tell you a lot of money will be made this next year and that the boom will last at least one year more, and that the 'trick' will be to get out before the reaction sets in. The boom may last one, two, three years, or maybe longer. Its duration may vary, much depending on business conditions in the north.

Danger Is Pointed Out.

Booms are dangerous because they are uncontrollable, and the values created, are frequently unsound and have no economic basis.

"The chief industry apparently is to buy acreage, divide it into lots and sell the lots. It is estimated that one-eighth of the entire state is staked off in lots. There are enough lots now available in Florida, if purchased and dwelling houses erected thereon, counting three people to the home, to accommodate 36,000,000 people, giving Florida approximately one-third of the population of the United States, but apparently most of the people that buy lots in Florida do so without an intention of building a home thereon. They buy for speculation—they buy with the intention of selling to the other fellow at a profit.

"Recently an application was made to the Division of Securities by a syndicate that bought 17,000 acres on and, divided the same into 135,000 lots. They bought this land for $10 an acre. They intend to sell these lots next winter for $14.75 apiece. There is no city on this land and more if it ever had been used for any purpose.

Values Are Enigma.

"Everywhere except in Florida, business men have always known that if a lot is not worth more than $14.75 or a building site it is not worth anything. Conservative real estate men cannot understand why business property in Florida cities of approximately 75,000 population can sell for more per front foot than in northern cities of a million population.

"We have examined numerous real estate propositions in Florida and have not given a certificate of compliance to any, because they have not been able to meet the conditions of the Ohio law. All of the bigger companies that we have investigated depend on 'high-pressure' salesmanship. Most of them have a selling cost of from 30 per cent to 65 per cent of the selling price of the lots. One company has $325,000 in motor busses, commission.

pays the drivers $50 per week, furnishes free rides to everyone, and, of course, the cost of operating these busses, including depreciation, must be added to the selling price of the lots.

"This particular company concede that the selling cost is 50 per cent of the selling price of their lots. Almost all of the companies furnish free lunches, free clam bakes or free banquets, have vaudeville acts and band concerts. One of the companies has a celebrated symphony orchestra that gives concerts several times a week at its main office.

Blue-Sky Law Enforced.

"If people want to go to Florida to buy land, that is their business. Some will make money, some will not, but the blue-sky law is being enforced in Ohio. We do not believe it to be good business for anyone to buy real estate without looking at it.

"The only advice that anyone can give about buying land away from home is to investigate before you buy. 'Let the buyer beware' and, further, never buy real estate when there is a brass band around."

Locher discussed also the Securities Department management and said that the present administration cannot be held responsible for what occurred prior to January, 1923. The companies that have failed were certificated before the present administration took hold, he said.

Oscar D. Miller, cashier of the Ohio Merchants' Trust company, Massillon was elected president, succeeding W. H. McClinton, Steubenville banker.

Walters will go to the electric chair tomorrow morning.

Columbus. — Ohio Methodists intend to undertake an extensive hospitalization program, representatives indicated Thursday at the 114th Ohio annual conference here.

September means the annual call money to support the Circleville Benevolent association for another year.

The health work of the city grows larger each year and with it the need for money. Consequently the treasury is very low and we must ask for generous subscriptions to carry on the work.

Every one realizes that Miss Phelps is a very necessary part of our community and the kind and generous response which always comes from these appeals is very gratifying to the association.

Consider your blessings and this appeal, then be ready to give accordingly when the solicitors come to you next week.

PICKAWAY CO FARM BUREAU NEWS ITEMS

Raymond E. Cray, poultry department, Ohio State university and the county agent inspected the laying flock of Miss Mary McKenzie Wednesday afternoon. One hundred and eighty-six White Leghorn hens were banded with the Ohio Poultry Improvement association band. Mr. Cray remarked, "This is one of the best flocks I have examined."

Miss McKenzie will sell certified eggs from certified hens next spring for hatching purposes.

Miss McKenzie has kept a demonstration flock record for three years and says this about the record, "It put our flock on a profit basis."

The meeting at Palm Brothers Saturday morning, September 19, has been cancelled due to digestive disorders of the ton litter. The litter will probably weigh 2700 pounds but the Pals do not want a public demonstration. The hot weather during the heaviest feeding season is the cause of the disappointment.

Add statistics. If all the men who have not broken a single one of the tens of thousands of lays now in the statute books of the country in the last two years were gathered together in one telephone booth, the telephone booth would still be empty.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Pink hearts attached to pink rosebuds and bearing the names of Miss Geraldine Leggett and Dr. M. D. Scholl announced their engagement at the charming tea given Monday afternoon by Miss Mary Martha Herrnshtein at her home on South Mulberry street. The sixty guests who called during the hours of three and five were met at the door by Miss Isabel Enderlin who presented each with a rosebud. In the living room Miss Herrnshtein and Miss Leggett received, Miss Herrnshtein in a graceful gown of green georgette and Miss Leggett looking exceedingly attractive in green and gold georgette. Mrs. Ward Skinner of Wellston, presided at the punch bowl. In the dining room Miss Marion Woodrow poured and Miss Edna Clough and Miss Frances Barrett served, while Miss Anne Har-mount invited the guests to the dining room. The tea table was exceedingly lovely, carrying out the color scheme of pink, lavender and yellow. Yellow candles were placed at either end of the table which was centered by beautiful pink roses and lavender asters. The girls who assisted in their pastel shaded gowns added to the attractiveness of the picture.

Among the out-of-town guests who called during the afternoon were Miss Mary Alice Bales and Miss Ruth Mack, of Circleville.

Miss Leggett is the charming daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. D. Leggett of East Second street and one of the city's most popular young women. Dr. Scholl is now a doctor at White Cross hospital in Columbus, but expects to locate in this city in a short time.

The wedding will be an event of the early fall.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

Mrs. Graham, Miss Wilder and Miss McEwing were the clever hostesses to about 35 members of the Business and Professional Women's Club at the home of the former last evening.

Miss McEwing gave a very descriptive talk of her experiences as a delegate to the National convention at Portland, Me., last August. Both she and Miss Wilder wore souvenirs representative of the delegations from the different States. They also had gathered together a collection of paper flowers which the delegates had used to represent their States and had them banked upon the mantle, and during her talk, Miss McEwing explained what each flower represented. Quite a lot of amusement was afforded when they placed a pile of packages of all sizes and descriptions upon the floor and told the ladies to help themselves. Each package contained a small souvenir and a verse written on the package.

A delicious lunch was served and singing of the club songs completed the evening's entertainment.

VANDALS TUNNEL MOUND

Chillicothe, Sept. 15.—Vandals have been working in the rear of a mound on the John McKell farm a half mile east of Bainbridge, on the Cincinnati pike, it was learned today. They had made a tunnel 20 feet long, three feet wide and 10 feet high into the mound, which is under lease to the state. Nothing is believed to be missing, and a guard is being maintained. It is thought the discoveries in the Pricer mound recently prompted the attempted robbery.

WE PRINT THE NEWS

SLAP AT PROHIBITION AGENTS AND WASHINGTON

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 16.—(UP).—The nation's capital today was branded a "cesspool of iniquity" by Judge T. H. Green, in his charge to the September county grand jury here. He deplored the acts of "all lone wolves and hungry dogs" who invade the city and county and "trample on the rights of American citizens."

His charge was taken as a slap at the conduct of federal prohibition raids in Peoria county this summer headed by "Lone Wolf" Asher, who caused the arrest of nearly 200 soft drink shop dealers.

"I regret that such things have come to pass," judge Green said. "I believe the state of Illinois is better able to determine what the people of this state need and want than any individual or set of individuals in that cesspool of iniquity, the city of Washington."

"The rights of the people of this community have been trampled upon by lone wolves and hungry dogs who have come here and invaded our rights, just like an invading army. Securing 'John Doe' search warrants and then inserting the names of the victim is the practice they followed as it has been reported to me."

"The invading tyrannists have enforced themselves with shot-guns and revolvers. They have slipped their hands into the purses of their victims and put the money in their own pockets if reports coming to me are true. They have not respected the rights of American citizens, guaranteed to them under the constitution. I charge you especially to investigate the reported conduct of these men."

SCISSORS IN THE KITCHEN

A pair of scissors kept in the kitchen are invaluable. They should always be sharp and have good points and should hang upon a convenient hook. A nail is not advisable, as the scissors may fall and injure the points.

There are many uses for a pair of scissors and their employment in the place of a knife will result in more time saved and less labor lost.

When cutting meat for curries, stews, etc., the scissors will do the work in half the time of a knife. For cutting the fins off fish or preparing oranges for marmalade, raisins, dates or figs for puddings or cakes, or for chopping orange or lemon peel they are quick workers, as they are also for topping and tailing currants and sultanas.

Certain vegetables also can be cut with scissors. For instance, there is parsley for omeletes, or for white sauce, or for salads, or for sprinkling over hors d'oeuvres or for the stuffing for chicken or fish. They are useful for preparing celery, mint, beans.

Tarts and pies with fancy pastry may be decorated far better and more quickly with scissors than with a knife, while in making ornamental cakes attractive flowers and leaves can be cut from preserved fruit with a pair of scissors.—Christian Science Monitor.

He Knew His Stuff

Gilbert H. Ayres of Taylor university, who has just been announced as winner of the $1,000 prize essay contest in chemistry, offered by the National Chemistry society, and open to all colleges and universities of the United States, told a good story on himself the morning he received the prize.

In the evening mall of the day before he received a notice from the Upland bank saying that his account was overdrawn 13 cents. On receiving his check he went to the bank at once, informed the cashier that he had come in to adjust his account and then, with the coolness of a millionaire, passed in his check for $1,000.—Indianapolis News.

Not All "Tuskers"

Tusks are present only in the males of the Asiatic elephants and are only about half as large as those found in African elephants. Both sexes of African elephants have tusks, which contribute to the dwindling of the species, as the females are as liable as the males to be killed for the sake of the ivory.

Flare Is Feature
of New Fall Duds

Coats and Dresses Become
Wider From Waistline
Downward.

In discussing the fall fashions in women's coats and dresses, especially apparel for the young lady who is attending school, a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune says:

Let us start with the coat or cape as a beginning and work inward. Coats for autumn are more ample, surely from the waist downward, and most of them are made from beautiful rough materials with an incredibly soft, long nap, something like velvet. They are marked with the designs you see in men's overcoats and winter suits—chevrons, zigzag stripes, shadow plaids and small irregular diamonds. The outside of these winter coats is usually of some neutral tint like smoke gray, dull bois du rose, light brown or bright navy blue, and the inner side is of a bright color, so that many of them are made without linings. Coats are made with flaring backs, many of them swinging free from the shoulders, and are quite straight in front with diagonal closings or else are buttoned up to the chin. Jenny makes the backs of her youthful coats plaited from a deep shoulder yoke, which is very attractive if the material is not too heavy. Chanel buttons some of her coats straight down the center front from the chin. They have round collars of material or fur which frame the face and flare from the shoulders at the side and back.

Double-Faced Materials.

Some of the most attractive French costumes for the high school girl are three-piece, being composed of a cape and sports suit. Lucien Lelong makes these suits of double-faced material with circular full-length capes that fit the shoulders and show double-breasted jackets with front-plaited skirts. The interior of the cape is a bright color, and the skirt is also made of this brilliant side of the material. Another version of the three-piece suit, from Vionnet, shows a cape of gray lined with bright blue and a gray dress of frisca over which is worn a double-breasted vest of light blue.

School dresses have jumper bodices and either circular or plaited skirts. Popular materials are a loose-woven fabric called kasha natte, frisca and cashmere. Remember that the jumper should be considerably shorter than last season, reaching just to the hips and no farther, and that the sleeves must be loose at the top. Standing band collars have, to a great extent, replaced the familiar round collar. Some of these collars have long bands that tie in front, on the shoulder or in back, and others have the band opening in front into a V. Martial et Armand have a dress for the young girl made of bois du rose cashmere frocks of crepe de chine in soft shades of capucines, bois du rose, madonna blue and green and trims them with collars, cuffs and bands of velvet in the same tone. Madeleine Vionnet makes some of her young girl frocks of wool and bands them with a lighter-toned crepe de chine. Lace collars and cuffs are also seen on some of these frocks.

The Circular Cut.

Skirts show a preference for the circular movement, although plaits are also prominent. The godet is not used so much as either full or half-circular skirts. Plaited dresses of crepe de chine, banded in wool of the same shade or a lighter or darker tone of it are being offered by such houses as Chanel, Premet and Martial et Armand. These dresses are shown with sweaters of the wool banded; that is, a reseda green crepe de chine dress, plaited from a deep shoulder yoke and having a hem, pipings and collar and cuffs of dark green kashanatte, is worn with a sweater of the same fabric that fastens straight down the center front with green bone buttons and is banded with the lighter crepe de chine. Sometimes, particularly in the models of Madeleine Vionnet and Lucien Lelong, the sweater is replaced by the double-breasted sleeveless jacket. Sweaters and jackets of shadow plaid are worn with plain circular skirts of wool and with long coats or capes of plaid in order to give warmth when needed.

The young girl's dance frocks and general party dresses for early autumn have very full skirts indeed, and many of them have straight bodices that are cut to the normal waistline or at the longest, not lower than high on the hips. A dance dress of this type, from Drecoll, is made of dull orange velvet with a straight bodice, cut to a V in front and back, and a skirt made very full with circular gores. It is new and entirely charming. Lelong has an attractive party frock for the young girl made of white crepe de chine with a skirt that is made full by means of godets all around, and a straight square-necked bodice. Over this is worn a sleeveless jacket of rose-colored velvet, surplice in front and tied in a sash at the back. Doucet has a debutante's dance frock made of madonna-blue tulle with a V-necked bodice and a godeted skirt worn over a straight slip of cream-colored lace.

For Hop and Prom.

Louise Boulanger offers a unique party frock for the young girl, made of white and silver crepe with a straight bodice and long sleeves, bishop in cut, slit from wrist to the front and side of the armhole. The skirt is very full in front and has a butterfly sash of silver tulle placed at the waistline in front only. Capes of velvet or coats of velvet and lame brocade are worn with such frocks. Scarf collars are more often shown than collars of fur.

The guiding principle for the modern young girl in choosing her wardrobe is simplicity. In later years she can cover herself with embroidery and elaboration if she will, but if she is wise, or her parents are, she lets youth reap the full advantage that is given it by a charming, slim figure and a fresh complexion, and lets her frocks form a setting rather than fill the foreground of the picture.

Naturally, the simplicity will vary directly with the age of the girl, and it will not do to deny the budding college undergraduate some of the frills and furbelows of the post-debutante, particularly in evening clothes. For girls still in the secondary schools, however, the American tradition of unaffected simplicity should be followed without deviation.

Give Piquant Touch

Two of the outstanding French designers are making extensive use of the watch fob as a trimming for the plain white flannel frocks now being worn. The black fobs bearing a sparkling ornament peep out of a breast pocket or from a receptacle at the wrist. Black-and-white leather belts also give a touch of piquancy to the simple costumes.

In Advertising Jargon

"Hello! Wilbur F. Schwimpfel, what's your reaction to this little old day?"
"Jefferson B. Hatch, I'm sold on it—completely, absolutely, totally."
"Same here. As I analyze the position the present weather certainly has a big general appeal."
"It sure does get its story across."
"Count me in on that, W. F.; that's my slant on it precisely."
"No need to canvass the situation on a day like today, J. B."
"Sounds like good psychology to me."
"My name's on the dotted line to that, old man. Well good-by."

with straight unadorned front and jacket back, split at the center, with rounded corners joining at the round lace collar. The back of the skirt is fully gathered and has apron ties. This creates a new and youthful line that gives a little relief from the familiar jumper bodice. However, the simple jumper frock of any of the new wools, either patterned or plain with a rough surface, is the popular Paris entry for the Prix de la Jeune Fille.

Every amusing fantasy of trimming is possible in the simple jumper frock. Naturally there must be nothing that detracts from its line, for half its charm lies in the silhouette with that clever skirt fullness that allows perfect freedom of movement without destroying the harmony of line. The newest decoration is a band of fine shirring that may be placed on collar, cuffs and also at the hem, while it is also being introduced on skirt pockets or wherever the ingenuity of the designer suggests.

For informal parties and afternoon wear there are innumerable dresses of crepe and velvet combined, or crepe and cashmere. Jenny makes charming

Chick Embryo in Glass

For the first time in history, the development of the embryo of a warm-blooded animal has been carried on under such conditions that it can be watched. This feat has been accomplished by two scientists at the University of Leyden, Drs. J. P. M. Vogel and J. B. van den Boogert, who have placed common hens' eggs, with the shells removed, in small glass dishes in an incubator, and have succeeded in keeping the embryo alive and growing for five days. Hitherto the only way in which embryos could be studied has been by placing large numbers of eggs in the incubator and removing and opening them one by one at intervals. By this older method it has been possible to study closely spaced stages of development, but not to observe the growth as a continuous process, now made possible by the new way.

Recalled Matter on Car

Just as a young woman on a south-bound street car rang the bell preparatory to leaving the car, the other day, a woman seated beside her asked: "Pardon me, but will you be going near a telephone?"

The girl said she would; whereupon the other said: "Well, will you please call up Westport XYZ and tell whoever answers to please take the potatoes off the fire, water the plants and leave the laundry on the side porch? And thank you, so much."

And so far as the other passengers know the young woman did.—Kansas City Star.

PURCHASE

Of 308 Acre Prison Farm Is Approved.

The state board of control Monday approved purchase by the state welfare department of an additional 308 acres of land at the London prison farm by allotting $50,000 for the purchase. The money had been appropriated by the last legislature for the purchase of additional land at the institution, subject to the control board's approval.

The board took no further action on the proposed purchase of the Roseville brick plant in Muskingum County, the issue not having been presented by Welfare Director John E. Harper. The board takes the attitude that its task was finished when it set aside $28,000 for the purchase, though Director Harper had bargained for the plant for $35,000.

NEW PALACE
RESTAURANT
INVITES YOU

To Their Opening Saturday,
Sept. 19, Cafe Under
New Management.

An old restaurant, The Palace, with new faces, will open its portals to the public Saturday morning, September 19.

The entire building has been remodeled. The billiard and lunch rooms have received a coat of ivory white; the counters in their new suit of immaculate white present a cheerful appearance. Everything in the lunch room shows the master hand of an experienced man, who seems to sense the wants of the public.

New nickel plated coffee urns, new serving and steam tables have been installed, also a frigidaire for the storage of icecream; an electric freezing display case for the display of good things to eat, will be placed in the show window to show the public, how cool and clean the food that enters the inner man is kept. Sanitary will be the watch word, of this famous old restaurant.

The kitchen has also been remodeled and every device known to the culinary art, has been placed near and in control of the chef, and his assistants. Electricity has been installed which will run the meat and food chopper; the bread cutting machine and the ice chipper. Electric suction fans carry off the odors of the room and really makes these quarters which is the battery of a well equipped restaurant a pleasant place in which to work.

Three of the cosiest rooms on the second floor have been fitted up for the accommodations of ladies, who have a private entrance on Court street. The floors of these rooms have been covered with cork linoleum. The ceilings and walls have been repapered with neat and artistic paper and the baseboard and chair rails and other woodwork of the rooms have been painted a sheer white, giving the rooms a most inviting appearance. Opaque tables have been ordered, but for the present oak and walnut will be used; each room is equipped with electric fans and everything that milada, desires in the way of comfort has been provided for her convenience.

The Palace will be managed by Denny Pickens, who is the sole proprietor. Mr. Pickens promises to give the city a restaurant that the public will be proud to recommend to their friends. He will be ably assisted by James Carpenter, who will be the assistant manager.

French Colonials in Paris

The interest taken by France's colonial subjects in the decorative arts' exposition adds to the picturesque aspect of the crowds daily along the Esplanade des Invalides and in the grand palais in Paris. Swarthy Moroccan chieftains, Algerians, Tunisians, Senegalese, all in native costume, promenade in and out among the booths and pavilions, pausing to inspect with gravity and awe the various displays. Some are there in connection with the exhibits of the French colonies and protectorates, but the exposition authorities say that a far greater number are in the real tourist class, paying their own expenses and following their own programs.

Unemployment has fallen off in Italy. From recent reports we gather their chief occupation is nursing babies.

SHENANDOAH
Airship Disaster

Scenes of wreck
of U.S. Air Cruiser
in Pathe News

The fast work of the Pathe News in giving the world the screen views of the Shenandoah disaster is one of the most marvelous achievements in the history of the news camera. On the same day of the disaster pictures of the wrecked cruiser were shown in eastern cities.

So fast has been the development of camera work in giving the world its visual news that it may not be many years before the lens will be in a race with the printing press. Hardly an hour had elapsed after the news of the accident had been flashed by wire, when Pathe cameramen, driven in speed planes, were whirling away from Cleveland, Washington, Cincinnati and New York to the scene. One airplane was not entrusted with so important a mission, four were sent so that the film would get thru if disaster befell one or two of the planes.

Views of the fallen air cruiser and its surviving crew were filmed and the planes returned immediately with negatives which were developed at once and shipped to theaters over the country. So while newspaper extras were being rushed to the streets, the laboratory men were developing the film and hurrying copies to various theaters.

Scenes of the wreck of the Shenandoah will be shown tonight at the Met theater.

MYTHICAL ORIGIN

Filipinos Believe It to Be
Gift of a God.

The mythical account of the origin of breadfruit is typical of the Turanian culture which still grips the soul of the common man in the Philippines despite four centuries of Christian civilization.

According to the breadfruit myth, there was once a prolonged famine which was so severe that the people were reduced to the extremity of subsisting upon "araca," a sort of reddish earth declared to be edible.

A poor man and his wife had only one son, whom they tenderly loved. Not being able to bear the sight of the slow starvation of this son during the fearful famine, the father vowed that he himself would die and become food for the child. He asked the special boon of Bathala, god of gods in the Philippine pantheon, that when he should be dead Bathala would convert his remains into a food, and Bathala granted the prayer. Thereupon the father told the afflicted mother to grieve no more, but when he should be dead to bury his head in one place, his vitals in another and his body in another. When she should hear the sound of a leaf falling, then of an unripe fruit, and then of a ripe fruit, she would know that his prayer had been answered and hers and the child's life were to be spared.

Death came to the father. The widow buried the heart and stomach in the garden near the house, and Bathala lost no time in complying with his promise to a father ready to sacrifice life itself for a suffering child. Soon the widow heard a leaf fall, then an unripe fruit, then a ripe fruit. In a paroxysm of fear and hope she looked out into the garden—where behold! a breadfruit was growing! It was already full of ripened fruits curiously shaped like the human stomach! The famine was broken, the child's life saved, as the father had wished. Now, with many varieties of breadfruit growing without the least care throughout the Philippines, famine is not likely to recur in any degree of intensity; and if breadfruit does not suffice, then there are bananas and coconuts, each of which no doubt has quite as miraculous an origin as the breadfruit itself.

German Writes of Lincoln

One of the latest publications on the German book market is a biography of Abraham Lincoln in German. Hitherto only the German translation of the Carl Schurz sketch of Abraham Lincoln's life existed. The author of the German work is Count Albrecht Montgelas. The book has met with a favorable reception by the press. Reviewing it the Vossische Zeitung says: "Despite the obvious thoroughness of Count Montgelas's investigations and research work among the mass of existing Lincoln biographies, his book reads like an interesting short story." Another paper states: "Even among educated Germans, there are not many who fully realize Lincoln's historical importance."

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

(1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;

(2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;

(3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

Rye Is Surest for Winter Cover Crop

Makes More Growth on Poor Soils Than Any Other.

Of all winter cover crops, rye is the surest and the nearest fool-proof. "It will make more growth on poor soils, whether clay or sandy, than any other. It is resistant to winter-killing, and may be sown successfully from August to December; but, October 1 is probably the best date of sowing for most localities," says E. C. Blair, agronomist for the North Carolina State College of Agriculture. "A bushel of seed should be used per acre. The seed may be scattered over a corn or cotton field and covered with a one-horse cultivator. This may be done at laying-in time or just after the first picking of cotton. Rye may be sown this way in a corn field, or the corn may be removed, the land disked and the rye drilled in."

Mr. Blair states that rye often gives good grazing in the fall when sown early. It will also give grazing in the early spring. Live stock should be taken off in time for the crop to make good growth for turning under. The rye should be turned under as soon as the heads begin to show, as at this time it will rot quickly in the soil. If allowed to become too ripe the stems may interfere with cultivation and soil moisture conditions all summer.

Rye is not a legume, Mr. Blair points out and takes no nitrogen from the air. Its value is in the prevention of soluble plant food from leaching out of the soil, the checking of erosion and in adding organic matter to the soil when turned under. It is one of the best crops to improve the tilth of the soil in this way. Whenever the success of a leguminous cover crop is doubtful, rye should be sown with the legume.

Care should be taken when storing winter apples to do this job "just right." Apples keep to the best advantage where each apple is wrapped separately in paper. If the apples are not already wrapped the wise householder wraps each one himself; but where this seems to be too much like work, at least be careful to put them in paper-lined barrels or boxes and then "go over" them frequently during the winter to pick out any that may show signs of decay, for "one bad apple will spoil a whole barrel."

Care should also be taken not to store the apples too near strong vegetables, such as turnips, onions, or even potatoes. For apples, like butter, are apt to "take on" the odors of other food that happens to be near them. Everyone knows that apples should be stored in a good dry cellar and in a cellar that will keep them cold but where they will not be frozen.

The tart varieties of apples are the best for canning purposes. All bruised spots, of course, should be carefully cut away from the fruit before cooking it. The most completely satisfactory method of preserving the apple is to make it into apple sauce and then place it in well-sterilized glass jars while it is hot. Of course, some may prefer to can the apples whole, so that they can be used more advantageously for apple dumplings.

Fruit Growers Urged to Order All Stock Early

Prospective fruit growers should order their nursery stock early in the fall, stipulating the grades desired, and that delivery shall be made on a designated date. Nursery trees are usually graded according to height, although diameter measurement an inch or two above the bud should be taken into consideration. Trees for planting should be well grown and stocky, explains E. H. Rawl, assistant extension horticulturist at Clemson college, who points out the method of handling.

When you receive your trees they should be immediately be unpacked and heeled-in where the soil is moist. This heeling-in process is accomplished by placing the roots in a trench a foot or 18 inches deeper than they are to be planted, with the earth packed around them. Trees are usually heeled at a 45 degree angle in the heeling-in trench.

FARM FACTS

Alfalfa may be seeded either spring or fall.

A silo filled with really good silage is about the best assurance for a profitable winter.

Cats are among the greatest menaces to nesting game birds, conservation authorities state.

Make the hoe cut below rather than just at the surface of the ground to get rid of weeds.

Green rye in amounts of 15 pounds or more fed one hour before milking flavors milk slightly but not enough to be objectionable.

The care given the strawberry bed now will largely determine the size of the crop next year. A row well filled (but not too full) of well grown, vigorous plants this fall is a pretty good insurance for the 1926 crop.

The Versatile Pineapple

PINEAPPLE has indeed been well named the most versatile fruit that we have. In deserts it is unrivaled and as a salad with cheese it is as delicious as it is good to look at. Its widespread popularity dates from the perfection of the canning process, for it is the canned product that is in greatest demand. Fresh pineapple is somewhat tasteless and is usually full of tough fibers.

Canned pineapple is packed in two ways for the convenience of the housewife—in slices for salads and desserts that require firm fruits, and shredded for ice cream, sherbets, fruit drinks, puddings, pies and other fancy desserts.

Recently the world has been developing a taste for saute pineapple and you will now find it served in this form with meat dishes. To saute pineapple place slices of it in a frying pan of hot butter and brown it slowly on both sides.

For a quick dessert nothing is more delicious or easier to make than shredded pineapple mixed with marshmallows cut in small pieces and bound together with whipped cream. If you like, a sprinkling of coconut can be added on top. Crushed pineapple makes a delicious sandwich filling if mixed with cream cheese. It also adds flavor to ice cream when poured on like sundae sauce.

Pineapple Custard Pie

Mix one can of crushed pineapple, 1 cup sugar, 2-1/2 tablespoons flour, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 beaten egg and 1/2 tablespoon melted butter. Pour into a deep pastry lined pie plate. Put strips of pastry across the top and bake in hot oven 40 minutes, reducing heat during last 20 minutes of baking.

Pineapple Sherbet

Add 1/2 can of crushed pineapple and the juice of 1/2 lemon to 1 1/2 cups of grape juice. Dissolve 1 tablespoon of softened gelatin in 1/2 cup of boiling water. Add to mixture and freeze.

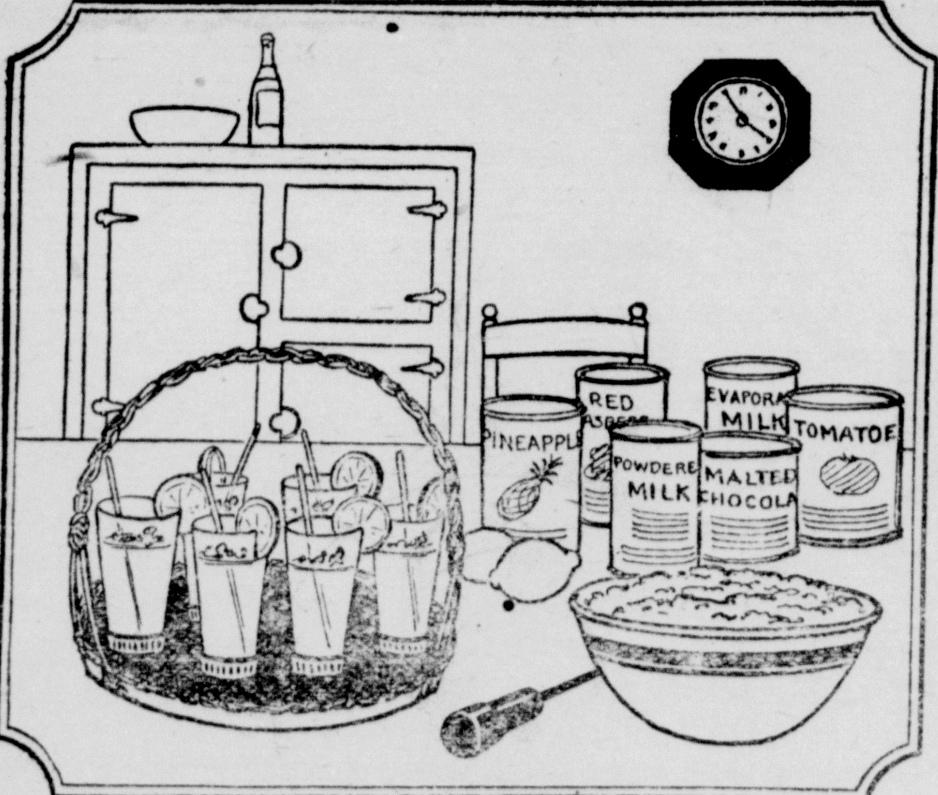

Pineapple Cheese Salad

Place slices of canned pineapple on lettuce leaves, allowing one slice for each person. Make French dressing and add 2 tablespoons of Roquefort, cream cheese or grated American cheese. After it is thoroughly mixed pour over pineapple and serve.

Pineapple Cake Glaze

Cream 1/2 cup lard, gradually adding 1-1/2 cups sugar. Add 1 well beaten egg. Sift 2 1/2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, and 1/4 teaspoon salt, and add to the first mixture alternately with 1 cup cold water. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in an iron spider and add 1 cup brown sugar, stirring until smooth. Spread with a layer of well drained crushed pineapple, pour batter over this and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven. Turn out on a plate, cool thoroughly, spread with whipped cream and serve.

Punch For The Party

PUNCH is just about the easiest refreshment which the hostess can serve at an informal dance or a simple afternoon party. With the aid of canned fruit juices, malted or evaporated milk, a few lemons and oranges and plenty of cracked ice, all sorts of delicious concoctions can be made.

Raspberry Shrub

Two cups water, 3/4 cup sugar, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 cups orange juice, 1 cup canned whole raspberries, 1 cup raspberry juice. Boil sugar and water together 3 minutes and chill. Add fruit juices and berries and pour over ice in pitcher. This makes 6 glasses.

Chocolate Float

Three cups evaporated milk, 1 cup water, 4 ounces unsweetened chocolate, 3 tablespoons hot water, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, whipped cream flavored with vanilla. Scald the diluted milk in a double boiler. Mix the chocolate, sugar and hot water over the fire. Add to hot milk and beat well. Add vanilla and chill. Serve topped with whipped cream.

Pineapple Frost

Mix two cups syrup from canned pineapple, 1 cup ice water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1-3 cup syrup. Pour into glasses containing cracked ice. Top with a spoonful of whipped cream and sprinkle with nutmeg.

Oriental Punch

To the juice of six oranges add

cupful each of the juice from canned peaches and pineapple and set this away in the ice box and when ready to serve add sugar to taste and a quart of ice water. The juice of canned berries can be substituted in place of peach and pineapple if you like.

Pineapple Grape Juice Punch

Two cups pineapple juice, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 cups grape juice, 2 cups ice water, 3 large slices orange, 6 maraschino cherries. Mix pineapple and lemon juice and sugar and stir until sugar dissolves. Add grape juice and ice water and pour into glasses each containing a half slice of orange, a cherry and a small piece of ice.

Grapefruit Punch

One cup of juice drained from a can of grapefruit, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 cups orange juice, 2 cups ice water, 1-1/2 cups powdered sugar. Mix the fruit juices and sugar and stir until sugar dissolves. Add iced water and serve.

Rhubarb Punch

Three cups rhubarb, 3 cups water, 1-1/2 cups sugar, 1 cup juice from canned pineapple, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 cups ice water. Cook rhubarb which has been cut in small pieces without peeling. Rub through a fine strainer, add sugar and stir until it dissolves. Chill. Add fruit juices and ice water and pour into glasses.

Mammoth Loaf

A loaf of bread, said to be the largest ever baked, was made recently in Minneapolis. It was 60 feet long and contained more than 400 pounds of flour.

PAUL WRITES TO THE THESSALONIANS

LESSON TEXT—1 Thess. 2:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—"In everything give thanks."—1 Thess. 5:18.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Love for His Friends.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How Paul Worked in Thessalonica.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul's Devotion to His Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Spirit and Method of Paul's Work.

While the lesson committee has selected this brief passage in the second chapter for printing, the intention was to present the message of the entire epistle. It was on Paul's second missionary journey that the church at Thessalonica was founded as seen in the last lesson. After crossing into Macedonia he preached the Gospel at Philippi, where he was imprisoned. From Philippi he went to Thessalonica. The people there were largely Gentiles.

I. The Salutation (ch. 1:1).
Timothy and Silas were associated with Paul in this missionary journey, and they are associates of Paul in this message.

II. Paul's Thanksgiving (1:2-10).
1. For Their Faith, Love and Hope (v. 2-4).

This triad of graces testified of their election of God.
2. How They Received the Gospel (v. 5).

It was in the power of the Holy Spirit.

3. Joyful Obedience (v. 6).
4. Exemplary Lives (v. 7).
5. Missionary activities (v. 8).
6. Turned From Idols (vv. 9-10).

III. Character of Paul's Ministry (2:1-12).

It would seem from this defense that some of the Jews had called into question his ministry. He defends himself by showing the character of his ministry:

1. It Was Courageous (vv. 1-2).
His persistence in spite of shameful persecution proved his devotion to the Lord and His work.

2. Honest and Guileless (vv. 3-4).
As one sent of God, he faithfully ministered unto them, not courting man's favor.

3. Without Flattering Words (v. 5).
4. Without a Cloak of Covetousness (v. 5).

5. Did Not Seek Glory From Man (v. 6).

6. Gentle and Affectionate (vv. 7-8).
So vitally did he enter into the lives of the people that he displayed a gentleness even as a nursing mother with her children.

7. Unselfish (v. 9).
In order that his motive be not questioned, he labored night and day for his support.

8. Irreproachable and Blameless (v. 10).
He did not claim to be faultless, but he challenged them as to his blamelessness.

9. His Lofty Aim (vv. 11-12).
That they would walk worthy of God in keeping with their high calling.

IV. How the Gospel Was Received (2:13-16).
As the very Word of God.

V. Paul's Desire for the Thessalonians (2:17-18).

1. He Endeavored to See Them Face to Face, but Was Hindered by Satan (2:17-18).

2. He Declared Them to Be His Crown of Rejoicing (2:19-20).

His hope of meeting his converts at Christ's second coming was his crown of rejoicing.

3. Timothy Sent to Them (3:1-10).
It was his report that furnished the information concerning this church.

4. He Prayed for Them (3:11-13).

VI. Sins Rebuked (4:1-12)

1. Unchastity (vv. 1-5).
2. Dishonesty (vv. 6-8).

3. Lack of Brotherly Love (vv. 9-10).
4. For Being Busybodies (v. 11).

5. Idleness (v. 11).

VII. Doctrinal Errors Corrected (4:13; 5:11).

1. Not to Sorrow Unduly (v. 13).
It was because of their misunderstanding of the meaning of the coming of the Lord that they were indulging in excessive sorrow.

2. The Reason Assigned (vv. 13-18).
(1) The departed saints will come back when Jesus comes (v. 14).

(2) Living Believers Will Be Caught Up With Them (v. 17).

3. The Time of the Lord's Coming Unknown (5:1-11).

The exhortation is "be ready."

VIII. Concluding Exhortations (5:12-23).

NO CONGREGATION FOR NEW CHURCH

Will of Illinois Man Gives $50,000 for Spiritualist House and Library.

Leroy, Ill.—They have broken ground here for a $50,000 church with out any parishioners. There will be $25,000 expended for furnishings and extras. A pulpit for the preacher and seats for the communicants, but there will be no people. This house of worship will be dedicated on March 1, 1926.

The court has ruled that the structure must be built. It was provided for in the will of J. T. Crumbaugh, an eccentric farmer of this community. He died in 1905, leaving a will which plainly stipulated that the income from 1,100 acres of the richest land in McLean county should be set aside forever and be used solely for the construction of the church and also a public library to be erected here in Leroy. After sufficient funds accrued to pay the cost of construction, then the annual income from the land was to be devoted to the maintenance of the two institutions.

Relatives Contest Will.

Relatives ignored by the testator immediately instituted suit to have the document set aside, alleging undue influence, incompetency and various other reasons. The litigation was carried on for a number of years and ran the gamut of the various courts from the lowest to the highest. The lower court declared the will invalid but the Supreme court set aside this finding and held that the will should stand. A new suit was filed in the Circuit court and again the plaintiffs won and the case was taken up. Again the upper tribunal decided for the will. For the third time, the relatives presented the issues in a new form in the Circuit court and a jury decided for them, but on the appeal the Supreme court refused to recede from its original findings and insisted that Crumbaugh was entirely rational and sane when he made the will and was a man of excellent judgment, prudence and forethought.

Heirs Give Up Battle.

After three successive knockouts the disappointed heirs decided that they were up against a stone wall and the litigation ended. The defense of the will by the executor cost the estate $60,000 in attorneys and court fees and this had to be raised by the sale of property of various kinds. The litigation and resultant expense has delayed action upon the church and library, as it was necessary to accumulate sufficient funds to justify letting the contract. The fund is now ample and the contract has been let.

Crumbaugh and his wife were formerly Universalists, but five years before the former's death he became interested in spiritualism and joined that sect. He believed with sincerity that he could converse with departed friends and spiritualist mediums took advantage of this belief and arranged numerous seances at his home. The Crumbaughs became the parents of a child that lived two months. It was the fancy of the father that his child became an adult spirit and was daily seeking to communicate with him. He engaged a portrait painter to place upon canvas a replica of the son as he would likely appear at man's estate had he been permitted to live. This imaginary portrait in oil was hung upon the wall of the Crumbaugh home and became a shrine at which the father daily worshiped, while with the co-operation of the mediums he believed that he was conversing with this child.

$20,000 for Maintenance.

Opponents of the will stressed this point in the effort to prove Crumbaugh of unsound mind, but it failed to carry any weight with the Supreme court. There was little surprise when the will was read, to learn that his fortune, estimated at $250,000, had been left to found and support a Spiritualist church and a library.

When Crumbaugh was alive there was a small group of neighbors who entertained the same faith, but all are gone and today, it is asserted, there is not a single believer in spiritualism in this community. Realizing the folly of building a church without a leader or congregation, the trustees conceived the idea of combining the church and library and utilizing one-half for an auditorium and the other half for the storage of books and also a reading room.

The court ruled that this dual structure did not conflict with the will, and, accordingly, plans were drawn for the combination church and library. There will be a seance room where mediums may seek to communicate with the spirits, while there will be an auditorium seating several hundred people, suitable for meetings of Spiritualists or others.

The joint building will be 120 feet in length and 63 feet in width. There will be an income of $20,000 per annum for the support and maintenance of the structure.

The Leroy library has probably the richest endowment and the largest annual income of any similar institution in the smaller cities of the United States. The will stipulates that the land must not be sold and that the income must be used exclusively for the maintenance of the two institutions. With ample funds the institution can be made of tremendous educational value to the community it serves and will likely be classed as a leader in library efficiency in the United States.
